

WHICH OF THESE PATIENTS DO YOU THINK MIGHT HAVE AUTISM?

...THEY ALL DO.

Autism can affect anyone.

More than 1 in 100 people have autism. The condition affects men and women of all ages, ethnicities and IQs.

However, many people with autism go undiagnosed. Under-diagnosis is a real problem, especially amongst older people. Rates of anxiety and depression are high amongst people with autism, and without a diagnosis it's harder to support them effectively.

Preconceptions about who autism affects and how people with autism behave can contribute to under-diagnosis.

Keep an open mind. Autism can affect anyone.

Accept difference. Not indifference.
